

Robert Winston

July 1940. Robert is born.

Graduates from the London Hospital College. Robert joins Hammersmith Hospital. 1975. Associate Professor at WHO advisor on Human Reproduction. 1990. Researches and develops screening. 1994. Director of NHS research and development. 1995. Becomes a Labour Peer. 2004-2005. Director of BA. 2024. Robert published 300 books.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th July 1940. He is a British professor, medical doctor, scientist and TV presenter. He joined Hammersmith as a registrar in 1970. He became an associate professor in 1975.

What was your favourite part of being a television presenter?

1 Ask Science! 2 SCIENCE SQUARE Explains

Early life:

Robert was 9 years old when his dad passed away from medical negligence. Robert has 2 younger siblings: a sister and a brother.

Winston attended Salcombe until the age of 7. Looking from London medical school.

Medical career:

He has been involved in screening and development of hospitals trust in.

Media career:

He's written hundreds of books and presented series, including a big fan of Paris.

15 July 1940 Robert is born.

1964 Graduates from the London Hospital medical college.

1970 Robert joins Hammersmith Hospital.

1975 Associate Professor at Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium.

1980 Researches and develops screenings of human embryos.

1994 Director of NHS research and development at Hammersmith hospital.

1995 Becomes a Labour Peer and joins the House of Lords.

2004-2005 President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

2024 Robert has published over 300 books and scientific papers.

Life long supporter of Arsenal football club, and a passionate musician. He also briefly embarked on a career in the theatre before he decided he was going to work on fertility.

He's also a former Borough of Willow and his brother Anthony. Winston attended Salcombe Preparatory School until the age of 7, followed by Coriel Court and St Pauls School, later graduating from the London Hospital Medical College in 1964.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He joined Hammersmith Hospital as a registrar in 1970 and as a welcome research fellow.

What's it like being a Geneticist?

SCIENCE SQUARE Explains

ROBERT WINSTON

Hard Working

Successful Ambitious Geneticist

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He joined Hammersmith Hospital as a registrar in 1970 and as a welcome research fellow.

What's it like being a Geneticist?

SCIENCE SQUARE Explains

EARLY LIFE

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He is the youngest of three children of an Orthodox Jew. His mother was a nurse and his father was a doctor. He was born in the former Borough of Southgate. Winston was nine years old when his father died as a result of medical negligence. His younger siblings are a sister, the artist Rachel, and a brother, Anthony.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He is the youngest of three children of an Orthodox Jew. His mother was a nurse and his father was a doctor. He was born in the former Borough of Southgate. Winston was nine years old when his father died as a result of medical negligence. His younger siblings are a sister, the artist Rachel, and a brother, Anthony.

I think good parenting should allow children to be children that are not too worried about work.

Robert Winston

Thinking ambitious author

Geneticist

precise detail-orientated. Smart

1964 Graduates from the London college.

1970 Robert joins Hammersmith Hospital.

1975 Associate Professor at Catholic University.

1975 WHO advisor on Human Reproduction.

1990 Director of NHS Research.

1995 Becomes a Labour Peer. joins House of Lords.

2004-2005 President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

2024 Robert has published over 300 scientific papers.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th July, 1940. He is a British professor, medical doctor, scientist, television and a Labour Peer. He's a lifelong supporter of Arsenal Football Club, and a passionate musician. He embarked on a career in the theatre before he decided he was going to work on fertility. He joined Hammersmith hospital in 1970.

Did you fight in the war? Who were you inspired by to become all your jobs?

Amazing BODY M.C.N. SCIENCE SQUARE Explains

Medical Career

Winston Churchill has been research and pioneered new techniques in IVF.

Robert Winston is an author and a geneticist. He has been heavily involved in IVF research and pioneered new techniques in screening human embryos. He joined Hammersmith Hospital as a registrar in 1970 and became an associate professor at the Catholic University in Leuven in 1975. He was a professor of Science in 1975.

He's written hundreds of books and articles and presented several BBC television series.

He's also a former Borough of Willow and his brother Anthony. Winston attended Salcombe Preparatory School until the age of 7, followed by Coriel Court and St Pauls School, later graduating from the London Hospital Medical College in 1964.

"I think that good parenting should allow children to be children that are not too worried about work."

15th July 1940 Robert is born.

1964 Graduates from the London Hospital.

1970 Robert joins Hammersmith Hospital.

1975 Associate Professor at Catholic University.

1980 Researches and develops screenings of human embryos.

1994 Director of NHS research and development at Hammersmith hospital.

1995 Becomes a Labour Peer and joins the House of Lords.

2004-2005 President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

2024 Robert has published over 300 books and scientific papers.

Life long supporter of Arsenal football club, and a passionate musician. He also briefly embarked on a career in the theatre before he decided he was going to work on fertility.

He's also a former Borough of Willow and his brother Anthony. Winston attended Salcombe Preparatory School until the age of 7, followed by Coriel Court and St Pauls School, later graduating from the London Hospital Medical College in 1964.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He joined Hammersmith Hospital as a registrar in 1970 and as a welcome research fellow.

What's it like being a Geneticist?

SCIENCE SQUARE Explains

MEDIA CAREER

He's written hundreds of books and articles and presented several BBC television series.

He's also a former Borough of Willow and his brother Anthony. Winston attended Salcombe Preparatory School until the age of 7, followed by Coriel Court and St Pauls School, later graduating from the London Hospital Medical College in 1964.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He is the youngest of three children of an Orthodox Jew. His mother was a nurse and his father was a doctor. He was born in the former Borough of Southgate. Winston was nine years old when his father died as a result of medical negligence. His younger siblings are a sister, the artist Rachel, and a brother, Anthony.

I think good parenting should allow children to be children that are not too worried about work.

Our children in classes 8, 9 and 10 have been learning about Professor Robert Winston this week and completed fact files about him in our Science books – here are some of our examples.

Early life

Robert was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He is the youngest of three children of an Orthodox Jew. His mother was a nurse and his father was a doctor. He was born in the former Borough of Southgate. Winston was nine years old when his father died as a result of medical negligence. His younger siblings are a sister, the artist Rachel, and a brother, Anthony.

He has written hundreds of books and articles and presented several BBC television series.

He's also a former Borough of Willow and his brother Anthony. Winston attended Salcombe Preparatory School until the age of 7, followed by Coriel Court and St Pauls School, later graduating from the London Hospital Medical College in 1964.

Robert Winston was born in London on the 15th of July, 1940. He is the youngest of three children of an Orthodox Jew. His mother was a nurse and his father was a doctor. He was born in the former Borough of Southgate. Winston was nine years old when his father died as a result of medical negligence. His younger siblings are a sister, the artist Rachel, and a brother, Anthony.

I think good parenting should allow children to be children that are not too worried about work.

Quote: "I think that good parenting should allow children to be children that are not too worried about work."

Robert Winston